

"Calm Before the Storm"

By Ron Lesser

The original painting, which depicts General "Stonewall" Jackson on the morning of September 5th as he crossed the Potomac, captures this "Legend of the Confederacy" with power, majesty, and superb detail. Only days later, under the command of General Robert E. Lee, General Jackson would be locked in battle with the Army of the Potomac in some of the bloodiest days of the Civil War.

In commemoration of the 140th anniversary of the Battle at Antietam, the editors at North & South Magazine commissioned this original oil painting for their cover - "The Calm Before the Storm" by noted artist Ron Lesser.
